Current Responsibility

Don Biron is a senior consultant in Milliman's health and group benefits practice, focusing on healthcare benefits and exchange administration sourcing strategies and provider selection. In this role, he helps clients develop and cultivate strong internal and external business partner relationships to successfully deliver market competitive, cost-effective benefits programs.

His expertise in strategic goal development, solutions, client relationship management, and strong business partner collaboration drives the realization of client project goals. Don is a benefits administration outsourcing thought leader and frequent speaker and commentator in the industry.

Professional Work Experience

Don has more than 25 years of benefits consulting, management, and client relationship success and works with clients, consultants, and providers to drive outstanding outcomes. His experience spans hundreds of projects through his client relationship management, sales leadership, and consulting roles with major benefits consulting firms and administration providers. Don has successfully managed consulting and delivery teams providing service to both large and mid-sized corporations across many industries, including energy, telecommunications, manufacturing, food service, pharmaceutical services, defense, aeronautics, and financial services.

Prior to joining Milliman, Don held leadership and consulting roles with Information Services Group, The Segal Company, Towers Perrin, ExcellerateHRO and Xerox.
